SHE DROPPED HER MITTEN.

And She Was Angry Because the Dear Old Man Misunderstood Her.

It was just 6 o'clock, and the car was packed with people going home.

She carried some bundles, and in her efforts to handle them, and save them from crushing she dropped her mitten. She saw it go, but was powerless to stay its descent, and it went down in successive stages in a triangular space between herself, a man who looked over her head, and an individual who was deaf.

"There goes my mitten!"

The deaf man leaned over and said, "Eh?"

"My mitten—mitten—it fell down."

"Well, ye can't git it, man. Y'll have to wait till the car gets to the end of the line, so the conductor kin pull up the floor."

"I'll do nothing of the kind. Besides I ain't goin' to have all these people walkin' on it for half an hour."

"Haven't ye got another one?" said the deaf man.

"Course I've got another one," and she wiggled the hand in edd in her other mitten.

The deaf man saw the movement, and knowing that women often carry car fare inside their hand coverings reached over and pulled her mitten off for her.

Then she screamed.

The conductor was the only man who could edge his way to the scene of trouble.

"What's the matter here?"

"Lady dropped her nickel and can't pick it up," said the deaf man.

" Didn't drop my nickel—dropped my mitten," said the lady with the packages.

" Said she had another one," pursued the deaf man, "but she had."

" You're an old doorman," said the woman with one mitten.

" Queen, how folks go travelin' about town with only one nickel," said the deaf man.

" They get along better'n people with no ears," said the woman who didn't drop her nickel.

" Was that all the money your husband give ye?" asked the deaf man in a tone of sympathy. " He must be a reg'lar brute."

" If he wuz here now, he'd eat you up."

" I suppose there's collar and cuffs she's been don up and is goin' to deliver 'em," said the deaf man to the passengers.

Then the conductor said, " Fare, please," and the woman gave up a nickel that she had been carrying in her mouth.

" Thought it was in yer mitten," said the deaf man.

" You don't know how to think," said the woman.

" Wonder why she didn't carry 'em both in her mouth?" said the deaf man.

" You ought to stuff both your own mittens in yer mouth," said the woman. " Ain't ye afraid ye'll swaller yer nickel that way some time?" asked the deaf man.

" If I do, I reckon it won't injure my hearing," said the woman.

Then the conductor got down on the floor and recovered the woman's mitten, and she got off at the next crossing wondering why some people didn't carry ear trumpets.

The deaf man said, by way of enlightening the other passengers, " I guess it was her mitten instead of her nickel that she dropped." —Chicago News-Record.

Woman to Woman.

The attitude women assume toward strange women was amusingly brought out in a New York court a few days ago.

A female witness in a case where a young man was accused of slashing a young woman's dress while riding in the elevator was asked by one of the lawyers, "Do you mean to say, madam, that you saw all those tears or cuts, whichever you please, in a lady's skirt and yet hadn't the politeness to tell her of it?"

"I do," said the witness. "I have often seen women when their dress was out of order in the street, but I always got emboldened for my pains, and I made up my mind not to do it any more. If a man should tell a woman that her dress was out of order, she would be very apt to 'hush him,' but she never thanks a woman for it."

Lundy Locals.

The following items are from the Homer Index.

When the pine-cone laughs look out for wind.

The doctor comes to see you and recommends a change. Then he proceeds to review you of your change.

We have had no snowslides this winter worth mentioning, no deaths, no serious trouble of any kind, only rheumatism and gout caused by high living. So we ought to be a happy little community.

Owing to the deep snow, teams coming up the canyon do not cross the lake as has been the winter custom. The ice and snow, in alternate layers, are perhaps six feet thick.

Mrs. Cleveland—as she had a perfect right to—kissed her husband publicly and repeatedly on inauguration day. Osculating with Grover must be something like sucking dew from a circus tent.

Senator Stewart makes the strong point that the utter denunciation of silver will not only stop silver mining, but will lessen by one-half the production of gold, as one-half the gold product is from silver mines.

The earthquake on the 2d instant shook enormous masses of rock and earth from the southern escarpment of Castle Peak, besides starting big and little snowslides on either side. An eye-witness says it was grand and thrilling to see the stubborn old mountain bow and bob to the adjacent peaks like a polite Kentucky gentleman saying good morning to his friends. The landslide has exposed a large quartz ledge about half way to the summit. The adventurous climber who gets to it first may find a bonanza. Very rich float rock has at times been found in that vicinity.

An Indian Cutting Affair.

Two Indians got into an alteration in the alley north of Baker's store yesterday morning, which resulted in one of them drawing a knife and cutting the other quite severely. As soon as the wounded Indian could break away from his murderer, his assailant made tracks down the alley, and was afterwards found by Sheriff Canghus in a woodshed at the rear of the Inverness Hotel, lying in a pool of blood and apparently unconscious. County Physician Phillips was summoned and had the wounded man removed to the county hospital. An examination of his injuries showed three scalp wounds on the top of his head, an ugly gash on the right cheek and a deep cut in the center of the back. The latter wound is the only one from which any danger is apprehended, but the doctor is of the opinion that none are fatal.

The assailant made tracks toward Peavine Canyon as soon as possible. Constable Dickey and two deputies, as soon as they were made aware of the occurrence, started to pursue and tracked him as far as a washup near the mouth of the canyon, where the trail was lost. Both Indians were more or less under the influence of fire water, which was probably the cause of the trouble.

The San Francisco Beef Market.

The Butchers' Gazette has the following relative to the San Francisco beef market. The local beef market is in much the same condition as reported in our last week's report. Good beef has been slightly scarce, due, no doubt, to the difficulty of obtaining top price. Slaughterers say there is no money in disposing of fed cattle at 5½ cents, and as the top price does not bring much over 6 cents they say they can not afford to kill prime stock and let it go at the latter figure. A few choice steers have brought 6½ cents and again good cattle have sold from 5 to 5½ cents. Taking it all around the beef market for this season of the year is not satisfactory as regards price, and Nevada stockmen are looking for other markets where values are more in accord with their views. There is no fear of any scarcity of their cattle but good beef will not be in over abundance at Butchertown unless the market materially improves in price.

The Turkish Bath.

There was a large audience in attendance at the Opera House last evening to witness the performance of the Turkish Bath Company. Barring one or two small features, everything was fresh and new, and those who went there in the hopes of having something to laugh at had the opportunity.

"Precious goods come in small packages" is an old maxim, and Marie Heath verifies the truth of the proverb. Her representation of the 13-year-old girl was almost perfect. There were many laughable features, good singing and clever acting. The serpentine dance was original and interesting. As a whole, the performance was above the average of specialty entertainments.

Pinto Scholastic Troubles.

Three or four of the young Pinto squaw scholars at the Indian school south of town had a belligerent discussion early last evening, ending in a desperate hair-pulling and face-slaving match, say the Tribune. Two of their lady teachers, one from the East and the other from here, sailed in to stop the row and got badly worsted, one of them receiving a severe scalp wound from a broomstick wielded as a war club by one of the squaws. Superintendent Gibson arrested two of the chief aboriginal fighters, brought them to town, and they now are in jail, awaiting legal examination and correction.

THE ROOT OF ALL EVIL

MONEY AND THE VARIOUS TERMS USED TO DESIGNATE IT.

Mediums of Exchange Among Many Nations—Itude Articles That Were of Stable Value—The Names of the Various Coins of the Great World.

In Great Britain at the time of the Norman conquest were two kinds of money—"living money," i.e., slaves and cattle, and "dead money," that of metal. In the 13th century Nicolo and Matteo Polo found a money in use in China which was made of the inner bark of the mulberry tree, and which it was death by torture to counterfeit or to refuse to take in any part of the country. Among the South Sea islanders iron was so valued that it became money, and axes a standard of payment, the value of other articles being stated at so many axes. Cowrie shells are used as small coins in India, the East Indian islands and Africa, more than 1,000 tons being brought to Liverpool in 1851 from India to be exported to the African coast in exchange for palm oil. In America wampum was used by the Indians and was even counterfeited in 1635 by the colonists of Massachusetts.

In India cakes of tea and in China pieces of silk pass as money, while at the great annual fair at Nizhnei-Novgorod in Russia the price of tea has to be known before the prices of other commodities are fixed, it being the standard by which all exchange of merchandise is regulated.

In 1574 quantities of pasteboard were coined in Holland, and in 1770 in Scotland workers carried nails as money to take shops and alehouses. Notched wood was used at one time in England, and in central parts of South America until late years pins, a slice of bread, a pinch of snuff or a dram of whisky served the same purpose. In America at various times racoon, deer and bear-skins, corn, beef, tobacco and codfish have been legal tender.

The Jews, in addition to their ordinary money of shekels, talents and drams of silver, had "jewel money." To this people we are also indebted to the use of paper money in lieu of that of metal.

And among the curious facts in connection with this subject may be noted that the sum paid Judas for the betrayal of his master would be, according to the relative value of money in our day, a little more than 40 cents, a small price with which to purchase eternal infamy.

The first mention of money in any of the ancient records speaks of it as being weighed and not counted, and no mutilated piece was ever rejected. Under the Norman kings silver was coined with deep crosses, so that smaller bits could be obtained by simply breaking off what was required, something as we tear off postage stamps today.

An interesting study is found in tracing out the origin of the names of coins familiar to us now. The American dollar has quite a little history of its own. In northern Bohemia is a little valley called Joachimsthal, or Joachim's valley, and in the 16th century the reigning duke of this region authorized this little mining city or district to coin a silver piece, which was called Joachimsthaler. But the Joachim part of the name proving too much for everyday use, it was dropped and that of thaler deemed sufficient. The piece being of convenient size and well molded passed into general use in Germany and Denmark, and again underwent a change in orthography, finally turning up as the "daler," whence it came into English as the dollar, and was adopted as such by the Americans.

If France the Mexican dollar is generally called the "piastre," and the name is also applied to the American coin, but in either case the application is incorrect, for the name piastre, or piaster, has for the past 50 years been applied correctly only to a small silver coin used in Turkey and Egypt, and which is worth from about 5 to 8 cents in American coinage.

The word cent comes of course from centum, being a hundredth part of the American dollar, the dime also meaning tenth.

"The word shilling is of Saxon origin and was introduced into England by that people. Penny, formerly "pfennig," was also brought into England by the Saxons and was first coined in silver and originally derived from the word "penn," to plow, with the diminutive suffix "ing." The cognomen, "crown," of the English piece, worth about $1.20 in American coinage, was first issued by Edward III and named a consequence of the image placed upon it. The groat was first coined by the same monarch and is a corruption of the word "grosses," in contradistinction to the small coins or pennies. Its value was equal to about four of the latter coins.

The Russian "ruble" comes from the verb "to cut" and was so called from the ornamental edge the piece formerly had. The kopeck is equal in value to two-pence, as is also the kreutz'r in Austria, in Holland, Italy, France and Spain, in the last country the 5-peso piece, called the escudo, corresponds to the American dollar, the peso being the small coin representing the monetary standard and meaning "simply little piece." For several hundred years and until a recent date money was coined in from 20 to 30 places in France, but all is now issued from the mint at Paris.

Few French gold coins are now in circulation, except those stamped with the head of Napoleon III, and silver pieces of the same issue are almost as common. French silver coins were the best in the world, and coins are often met with bearing the stamp of Charles X, Louis XVIII and Napoleon I. The franc, in value in American money of 20 cents, was so designated by King John, who first coined these pieces in 1360. They bore the motto "Le Roi Franc" (King of the Franks), the ancient name of the French, and were of two kinds, one representing the king on horseback and the other on foot. It was formerly called the "livre" (pound) as well, though the connection with any specified weight is not evident.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
